- One Mad Night: by James Reach Directed by Brad V. Olsen
April 13-16, 2011 8:00 p.m. - Eccles Center for the Performing Arts
Playwright Don Cutter, accompanied by Wing, his proverb quoting Chinese valet, goes to the Cutter mansion to finish his latest play in peace and quiet. It's been deserted for years and reputedly haunted. Don's astonished when he finds the house tenanted by some very strange people including "Mr. Hyde" and "Lady Macbeth." They're harmless lunatics but Don doesn't know this. Then there's Lucille, a beautiful girl inmate with an amazing story of persecution and intrigue. Don's about to rescue her when his fiancé and her mother arrive. Then everything happens---including talking ghosts, screaming women, disappearing guests and for a climax, and an escaped murderer fleeing for his life appears. When the curtain falls your audience will be weak from laughter.
- Art Talks: Art Talks is a weekly series of discussions with working professionals in the field of contemporary art. Learn about a variety of artistic disciplines, techniques, philosophies, and meet the personalities from around the world that are here to share their expertise with you. Art Talks is free and open to the public. Join the conversation!

Cantata Mundi or "Song of the World" is a multi-media work featuring dance, costumes, music, and video that represent various world cultures. Created by the same team that brought you Songs of Sanctuary and last year's Life Sketches: The Dreamers, the work is designed to give the listener "cultural glimpses", with dance and music performances influenced by African, Polynesian, Asian, North American, South American and European traditions while not being strictly imitative of those cultures. The resulting effect is a cultural mosaic that celebrates both the diversity of world cultures and the spirit of humanity that unites us all.
